Summary

For as long as I can remember, I have always liked to keep up with the times. As the internet evolved, more and more useful applications appeared and websites began to look simply amazing. And I liked to consider myself a power user.

And because I didn't know anything about IT, my interest increased. That interest also led me to front-end development. I started with layout basics HTML5, CSS3, JavaScript and then moved on to React. I am also currently studying Redux. It's so exciting because every day you learn something new and I really like it. I also want to continue my education further and I think it's time to try myself as an trainee Js developer. I will be strengthing my existing knowledge and gain new ones to become a real developer.
